

Abstract of the Disclosure:

A communication system having several transmitter and receiver units and a ring-shaped communication bus for transmitting communication information between the individual transmitter and receiver units so that each transmitter and receiver unit is connected clockwise and counterclockwise to a neighboring transmitter and receiver unit by the communication bus. The ring-shaped bus structure enhances transmission safety of the communication system.

10

MPW/tk